The Picture Book That Empowers All Readers to Discover & Build Their Creativity

"This is the first book that I've discovered that presents courage, creativity, curiosity in a very approachable manner, friends that come alongside you to play, explore and uncover new insights together."

-Andrew Ngui

Director, Office of Innovation & Startups
Greater Peoria Economic Development Council

"You may have lost your friends—curiosity, creativity, and courage, but this book will take you on a wonder-filled journey to help you rediscover them and make them part of your daily life! I highly recommend this delightful book!"

-Dr. Cyndi Burnett

Director of Possibilities, Creativity and Education and Former Associate Professor,
Buffalo State College

"May young children read it and never stop asking questions. May middle-agers read it and have the courage to return to their core selves. May elders read it and rejoice in new ways to bless the world with creative ideas and works rich with wisdom."

-Cassandra Lane

Editor in Chief, L. A. Parents Magazine,
Author, We Are Bridges

About Have You Seen My Friends?

Creative intelligence is important to get right—right from the start. Aimed at ages 5-8, Have You Seen My Friends? immerses readers in the humorous, lyrical adventure of a character in search of its dear friends, Courage, Curiosity, and Creativity. It marries the traditional children's picture book format to today's conversations around creativity, friendship, and teamwork by encouraging young readers to connect with the creative world and, beyond that, talk about their reactions. Throughout the story, the character learns how to find them and reflects on the important message of friendship, mindset, and creativity. To give each of these friends a personality, Kang portrays them in animal figures that readers could relate to - Curiosity the Monkey, Courage the Owl, and Creativity the White Rabbit. These characters are illustrated through the fantastical original drawings of Khadeeja Qureshi. Have You Seen My Friends? is sure to stand apart in delighting and enlightening all readers.

Oh, how did I lose them? What a good question, my dear. Allow me to share who my three friends are and how you never want to let go of them on your journey through life. They seem to hang out around friends like you—kind, welcoming, and real. Have you seen my friends?
